

Poverty agency and class in the urban economy

Andrew Cumbers

Andrew.Cumbers@ges.gla.ac.uk

A growing underclass in changing city economies has been inadequately theorised and researched in urban geography. This research seeks to understand people's experiences of being at the sharp end of more global processes of economic restructuring, understanding processes and strategies of agency and resistance.

Application procedure and deadlines

To be considered for PhD studentships to be held in the School of Geographical and Earth Sciences (GES), suitably qualified candidates should apply via the website of the College of Science and Engineering

(<http://www.gla.ac.uk/colleges/scienceengineering/graduateschool/prospectivestudents/essentialinformation/>). Closing dates for University and research council funded studentships will be in early in the new year, as stated on the GES studentships page:

(<http://web2.ges.gla.ac.uk/~mlee/GES%202010%20studentships>).

Non- English speakers must meet the University's English language requirements. Candidates for ESRC studentships should also meet the ESRC's requirements for both academic qualifications and residential eligibility. For more information go to <http://www.esrc.ac.uk/ESRCInfoCentre/index.aspx> and please note that non-UK European Union citizens will be awarded fees only by ESRC.

For informal enquiries about the research projects please contact the relevant supervisors. Information on the GES graduate school and the application process can be obtained from Mrs Jean McPartland, the assistant to head of the School (Jean.McPartland@glasgow.ac.uk), or Professor Susan Waldron (Susan.Waldron@Glasgow.ac.uk), the head of the GES graduate school.